PROFESSOR EMERITA. Department of Counseling and School Psychology. San Diego State University. 2010-Present.

As professor emerita, I continue to write, engage in research, offer workshops and presentations, and to direct federal projects (grants) focused on issues of equity to support the professional preparation of school psychologists and school counselors. I teach the seminar on Native American and Indigenous issues in schools. I direct federal projects related to both Native American and Bilingual Spanish-Speaking professional preparation (see grants). I have specialized in teaching the graduate course on Advanced Learning and Mediated Interventions, focusing on the development of critical thinking skills, their integration with cultural consistency and with Common Core Standards.

LEADERSHIP & ADMINISTRATION

CHAIR, DEPARTMENT OF COUNSELING AND SCHOOL PSYCHOLOGY (CSP). San Diego State University. September 1990 - August 1996; September 2000 - August 2010.

The Department Chair position at SDSU includes an array of responsibilities, ranging from leadership and management to faculty oversight, knowledge of collective bargaining parameters, oversight of staff and students, community outreach and development, leadership in research, and external program development. As CSP's Chair, I provided leadership for a graduate faculty of fourteen full-time and fifty part-time faculty members in four graduate professional preparation programs and one undergraduate minor. The faculty was committed to issues of diversity and equity, which brought a unique flavor to our pedagogic and research endeavors.

Productivity of the faculty demonstrated breadth and depth. Our external funding far exceeded our instruction allocation; faculty members were sought as consultants and presenters; research and publication efforts were consistent and ongoing. The department averaged some 300 graduate students enrolled our (one to four-year) graduate programs: Community Counseling, School Psychology, School and Community Counseling, and Marriage & Family Therapy, and an additional 400 enrolled in undergraduate offerings, including the Minor in Counseling and Social Change.

I supported the evolution of a vision, mission, and five-year planning goals within the department, which inform the professional growth of individual faculty members, research teams, and of professional units. As Chair, I supported and promoted curricular development, seeking external funding sources, design faculty workshops, promote collaborative research and writing groups, and personally meet with small groups and individuals regarding professional development. I was integral in the establishment of our community-based counseling clinic, and our trauma studies certificate program, and contributed to the development of the undergraduate Minor in Counseling and Social Change. I managed an annual instructional budget of approximately $1,300,000. As a member of the Dean's Council, I served in an advisory capacity to the Dean on policy, academic, program, and governance related matters, and thus was integrally involved in the ongoing planning and management of the College of Education.

INTERIM CHAIR, DEPARTMENT OF CHILD AND FAMILY STUDIES. San Diego State University. June 2008 – July 2009.

As CFD's Interim Chair, I provided leadership for faculty of six full-time and eight part-time faculty members, and oversaw the development or revision of their personnel policies, futures planning, assessment plan, coordination within syllabi of outcomes and rubrics, curriculum development and outreach with First Five, the Children's Museum, and the City Heights Collaborative. The faculty is committed to research, policy development and community outreach as well as teaching. The department had some 400 students enrolled in undergraduate programs.

DIRECTOR, SCHOOL PSYCHOLOGY PROGRAM. Department of Counseling and School Psychology. San Diego State University. San Diego, California. January 1997 - July 1998; 1988-1991; and Co-Director 1983-84; 1980-81.

As Program Director, I provided leadership for ongoing program development, mentorship, faculty workload, student admissions, program evaluation, compliance issues, advisement, and external program-related professional contacts. Development of six university-school partnerships as a re-conceptualization of the learning needs of both graduate students and site-based colleagues was a major accomplishment. Leadership in collaboration for programmatic efforts includes new curricular directions, publications and grant proposals. I took major responsibility for the CTC (Commission on Teacher Credentialing) review preparation and documentation, and the National Association of School Psychologists (NASP) Portfolio document. I authored the first supervisor's handbook, as well as the handbook for students, and the document on competencies. Germane to my multicultural interests, while director I have authored as served as Project Director for the Cultural Advocates for Nations at Risk (Native American) Project (funded 1994 - 1999), coordinated field and partnership experiences for the Multicultural School Psychology Project (1996 - 1999), authored and directed the Indian Specialty in School Psychology Project (funded 1990-1993), and coordinated the Bilingual/Bicultural School Psychology Project (1989-90).

CO-DIRECTOR. Inter-Disciplinary Development Center. San Diego, CA. October 1975 - March 1977.

I co-developed this diagnostic and remedial clinic facility for youth with learning disabilities with a developmental optometrist. Our emphasis was on the total individual, with specific analysis of sensorimotor perceptual processes (proprioceptive, tactual, auditory, visual and integrative) as they related to information gathering, concept development and emotional maturity. Under my supervision, we gathered background data through reports and interview, administered and interpreted diagnostic developmental test batteries, and prescribed individualized remedial programs as a team. I worked with clients in communication, parenting, and emotional development as well. We began research on new developmental tests and instruments.

DIRECTOR. Learning Foundations and The Perception Development Center. San Diego, California. December 1971 - March 1974.

I provided leadership for this private center working with youth struggling with school. I trained and supervised all teachers in the utilization of program materials, motivational and teaching methods with our population of individuals then identified as "educationally handicapped." I interviewed parents and teachers, interpreted test batteries and prescribed programs for each student. I supervised testing by the staff psychologists and co-developed methods and materials based on findings. I represented the center in all media and public contacts. I conducted seminars and lectures in schools and the medical and professional communities. I co-authored and edited manuals for teachers and parents working with this population.

PRINCIPAL. The Foundation Elementary School (Learning Foundations, Inc.). San Diego, California. January 1973 - June 1974.

I was principal collaborator in the development of this full day elementary school program for children with learning disabilities, utilizing programmed materials, perceptual development equipment, concepts of freedom and responsibility, contracting, experiential learning, extensive parent involvement and team teaching. I supervised the testing and prescription of individualized educational plans, and represented the school in contacts with public schools, counselors, psychologists, medical community and the news media.

UNIVERSITY TEACHING

PROFESSOR. Department of Counseling and School Psychology. San Diego State University. August 1997 - 2015. (Associate Prof August 1987-August 1997; Ass't. Prof 1980-1987).

I specialized issues of culture and equity in schools (especially Native American issues); systemic reform and restructuring issues; curriculum infusion of meaningful thinking skills; and alternative assessment within that context, especially dynamic assessment and its integration with interventions and ecosystemic processes. These foci influenced my consultation, research and publication efforts, as well as my teaching. My concern for excellence in pedagogy is reflected in consistently high evaluations of my teaching.

The School Psychology Program was the area of my major emphasis and teaching. Within the program I have taught the internship supervision sequence, advanced learning theory and assessment; portfolio development; the foundation introduction course, seminar and practicum; the advanced sequence in individual appraisal; the Native American specialty seminar; supervised the bilingual seminar series; and the advanced professional seminar.

LECTURER. Department of Secondary Education, Reading Program. San Diego State University. San Diego, California. September 1976 - June 1977.

I taught the graduate course in Reading Disabilities: Assessment and Intervention. The course emphasis was on individualized diagnostic prescriptive processes in reading, with methods and materials applicable to classroom or clinic use. I introduced analysis of perception and processing problems to the course.

INSTRUCTOR. Community College of Allegheny County. Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. September 1968 - June 1969.

I was responsible for the development and teaching of English and reading skills in a program for adult inner-city residents preparing to take the GED High School Equivalency examination. I developed many of my own methods and materials.

INSTRUCTOR. Boston University, College of Basic Studies. Boston, Massachusetts. September 1967 - June 1968.

I taught introductory psychology and served as a counselor. This involved working as a part of the then-unique team-teaching concept. I also served as the advisor for the College Student Government.

EXPERIENCE AS A PRACTITIONER

SCHOOL PSYCHOLOGIST. Lakeside Union School District. Lakeside, California. February 1980 - June 1980.

Working with an elementary school population, I chaired School Assessment Team and Individual Educational Planning meetings regarding students with learning and emotional problems. I consulted with teachers on classroom methodology, observed, assessed and reported on all students referred. I designed and led a parent information and support group series to provide better understanding of parent roles in facilitating learning.

SCHOOL PSYCHOLOGIST. Grossmont Union High School District (Granite Hills High School), La Mesa, California. February 1977 - January 1979.

Stressing a team approach to intervention, I increased communication between administrative staff, pupil personnel and teaching faculties. I chaired staffing meetings with the IEP development team, increased resources for students identified as educationally handicapped, and provided counseling services to an ongoing caseload. I developed and maintained close contact with community referral sources. I evaluated and reported on all special needs students. Consultation included teaching, counseling and administrative staff. In addition, I led student groups in affective education.

COUNSELING ASSOCIATE. James A. Williams, Licensed Marriage, Family and Child Counselor. San Diego, California. January 1976 - September 1977.

In this private practice setting, I counseled families and children under supervision as an intern. My areas of special emphasis were families with children with learning disabilities, alcoholism problems, and women's issues.

EDUCATION SPECIALIST. National Council on Alcoholism, San Diego. San Diego, California. October 1974 - April 1975.

A majority of my work was in the development and implementation of in-service training programs with agencies, professionals and paraprofessionals on understanding and interventions for alcoholism. I gave a multitude of presentations to community groups and service clubs, and developed programs to promote alcoholism education and prevention through existing organizations. I trained and supervised a volunteer speakers bureau. I trained and ran groups on crisis intervention, and served as the North County Coordinator for "Alcoholism Information Month."

COUNSELOR. Community College of Allegheny County. Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. September 1968 - June 1970.

I was responsible for an ongoing caseload of individual and group counseling with the student population as well as some academic and vocational counseling. As a member of the dean's staff, I was involved with consultation with the teaching and administrative staff regarding problems relevant to our inner-city community college population, e.g. race relations, drug use and abuse, relevance of programs. I co-developed a drug information and counseling program for students with a program advisory board.

WORK TRAINING SPECIALIST (Title V, EOA). Board of Public Welfare. Taunton, Massachusetts. January 1968 - June 1968.

I was responsible for personal and rehabilitative counseling (individual and group) with welfare recipients. My emphasis was to encourage motivation to seek work or training for work.
