

SDSU/CGU Joint Ph.D. Program in Education

SDSU Fall 2016

Course	Description	Day	Time	Professor
ED 801 Seminar on Social and Cultural Foundations of Multicultural Education	Social and cultural parameters that have contributed to the shaping of American society and affected developments in education in the last two decades. Emphasis on the impact on multicultural education and human social behavior in pluralistic societies.	Wed	4-6:40 pm	Andre Branch
ED 804 English Learner Education: Models, Current Research, and Policy Trends	Analysis of existing models of English Learner education and processes for educational leadership for designing, analyzing or researching policy, curriculum or programs to meet diverse linguistic and cultural needs of students in current socio-political contexts.	Thurs	4-6:40 pm	Cristina Alfaro
ED 895 Multilevel Modeling	Multilevel modeling, or hierarchical linear modeling, is a statistical technique that allows a researcher to investigate data that are multilevel or nested. Examples of this include: students in classrooms or schools within districts. A longitudinal design where time periods are nested within observations is another example.	Mon	7-9:40 pm	TBD
ED 850 Seminar in Quantitative Methods of Inquiry	Inquiry and empirical research in educational settings within public schools, postsecondary institutions, and public and private sector educational organizations.	Mon	4-6:40 pm	Luke Wood

SDSU/CGU Joint Ph.D. Program in Education

SDSU Spring 2017

Course	Description	Day	Time	Professor
ED 808 Academic Research and Publishing in Education	Development, writing, and submission of an article to a juried journal in education argument development, creation of abstracts, and identification of theoretical frameworks. (Note: Not open to first-year students.)	Tues	4-6:40 pm	Pang, Valerie
ED 820 Advanced Educational Statistics	Theory and practice of statistical inference for research in education. Probability and sampling theory, data collection and organization, computer applications in educational research, statistical significance testing and prediction, use of statistical computer program libraries.	Mon	4-6:40 pm	Felisha Herrera
ED 814 Seminar in Curricular Change Processes	Curriculum change processes in educational organizations. Process of planning change and elements necessary for implementing and managing curriculum change to include diverse cultural context			TBD
ED 895 Engagement and Social Interactions in an Educational Context	Why does social interaction work? We will explore this question in this course. Specifically, we will examine social interaction in terms of how people engage with each other in a variety of educational settings to learn new concepts.			Chizhik, Estella